THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

And They Lived Happily Ever After.....

John and I have been happily married for 48 years now!
Would you like to know how we've achieved that?

1. We were both brought up in Christian homes, so we were both looking for a SDA Christian to marry. Our home continues to be Christ centred: we read the Bible together twice a day and pray about any decisions we have to make. We share the same values and therefore work together for the same goals.
2. We encourage each other by wishing each other a good day or offering to help around the house, or proof-reading a script, or asking how the other's day went, etc. We always say, 'thank-you' to each other too.
3. The pastor who married us told us to say, 'I love you' to each other every day. We still say it to each other lots of times each day, (often accompanied by a kiss!).
4. We try to affirm and support each other by taking an interest in each other's activities, by listening and talking things over as friends.
5. We like to share a joke or talk about something funny or amusing. It's good to be optimistic and have a sense of humour. All this helps towards making a happy home.
6. As you know we both continue to attend, support and run many church related programmes. We want to build up our faith by attending church and to share our faith by the articles, talks, classes, etc. that we run in the Dundee church and elsewhere.
7. So we thank God for His many blessings in our marriage. We've gone through some tough times together too; but God has always seen us through and so we trust Him for our future too.
